What is Identity Theft?

Identity theft or identity fraud occurs when personal and financial identification information (social security number, DOB, account number, etc.) is illegally used to obtain credit, loans, various services and establish or take over accounts. In some instances not only is the stolen information used to obtain credit, loans or services, it can also be used to commit crimes in the victim's name.

How Widespread is ID Theft?

The FBI calls identity theft the fastest growing white-collar crime in America. Experts estimate that there were over 9.9 million known victims nationally in 2002. This crime statistic represents explosive growth, increasing on average of 30-40% per year. The Federal Trade Commission estimates that in 2003 total losses were more than $48 billion due to identity theft.
